

CPD EVENT RECORD

MINDFULNESS IN MSK/"HEART-SINK" PATIENTS

with Robin Lansman and Karen Neil

Live Event:
Learning With Others

This discussion covered a broad range of the psychological components of treatment, including those relating to the practitioner themselves. A recent briefing paper from The Mindfulness Initiative, launched in the House of Commons, was also discussed. Motivation of both practitioner and patient was a key component, and the role of collaboration emphasised.

Not surprisingly, communication techniques were highlighted.

A short mindfulness exercise was demonstrated. This could be used by practitioners to help calm themselves before or after a difficult situation. Different approaches to mindfulness were mentioned, and details of the UK registry (BAMBA) were given.

Evaluation, Reflection and Impact on Practice (this part of the certificate is not automatically generated - it has been entered by the participant)

It was reassuring to see that this psychological aspect of healthcare is being embraced at a high level. The exercise demonstrated might prove useful in helping me keep my focus when difficult situations arise, and this will contribute to improving the care I can deliver in my practice.
