with James Booth and Steven Bruce

Summary

This was a live demonstration of the process of Peer Discussion Review, which is now a requirement of osteopathic CPD at the end of each 3-year cycle. The selection of a peer (which could be a fellow osteopath, a chiropractor or any registered healthcare professional) was covered and the purpose of each element of the process described. Also discussed was how conducting a peer discussion review, or a similar process, aided learning by encouraging reflection on how CPD might influence practice.
