TREATING CHILDREN - BABY BODY LANGUAGE

with Anne Matthews

Recording:
Learning by Oneself

This broadcast was concerned with the intricacies of communicating with young patients, in particular the use of baby body language to aid in diagnosis and connection. Empowering parents to trust their intuition was a major theme, understanding the emotional and physical cues of babies, and addressing family dynamics to support the child's development. Practical tips for parents, the role of support systems, and the inclusion of fathers in the bonding process were highlighted, along with clinical examples to illustrate key points.
